SPONSOR AN AFRICAN SCHOLAR

AMINA

Amina, a resilient and diligent student, is currently a first-year student at Pwani University pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in Literature. Her academic progress is a testament to her hard work and your invaluable support.

Amina is the 4th born in a family of 5 children. She stays with both parents, who are the providers of the family. Her father is a casual labourer at a construction site, and her mother sells vegetables in the Kongowea market. In a good month, both parents can obtain 50 euros from their work, and more is needed to cater for all the needs of the family and at the same time pay school fees for the children.

Her elder siblings didn't manage to continue with school due to a lack of school, forcing him to drop out. Amina was stranded and lost hope of continuing her studies due to fee problems. But thanks to your invaluable help, she is in school without any fee challenges.

They live in the Bangalaa slums in a single house with walls made of polythene paper bags; it does not have electricity or running water.

Amina, a young girl with big dreams, is passionate about her studies. She particularly enjoys learning English, Kiswahili, CRE, and Agriculture. Her ultimate goal is to become a Teacher, a testament to her ambition and determination. In her leisure time, she finds joy in playing Handball, a hobby that helps her unwind and stay active. Amina is deeply grateful for your support, which has made her dreams a reality.
